WEDNESDAYS WITH WARRENTON AREA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AUGUST 3, 2022

UPCOMING CHAMBER EVENTS

Wednesday, August 3rd Monday, August 8th Noon-1:30 pm 11:45- 1:00 pm Directors Meeting-Warren County R-3 Central Office General Membership Meeting- Country Lake Golf Club

Spotlight Member of the Month Kathy Bingham

Kathy is the Manager of MO Rides located out of Boonslick Regional Planning Commission. Kathy markets MO Rides in our local counties. MO Rides is a coordinated effort to help folks of all ages find Transportation in their county. We help the Disabled, older community members, and even folks looking for transportation to work. We can be reached at 844-836-7433 Monday-Friday from 8:00 am to 4:30 pm. We also have a website at www.morides.org where you can look for yourself for local transportation in your area. I also enjoy doing presentations to help folks learn more about the program and what it offers as well as attending Job and Health Fairs. Warrenton Area Chamber

5 SECRETS TO LASTING SUCCESS

Successful people also say that chance and hard work helped them get to where they are now. There is, though, even more under the sand. People at the top of their industries have a lot in common, and understanding what sets them apart can help you achieve long-term success in your own business.

Jeff Brown, a Harvard Medical School psychologist and co-author of The Winner's Brain, examines exceptionally effective individuals by examining their brain function and life stories in order to discover the factors that distinguish them. They do, in reality, think differently than those who never achieve success. "Smart people have figured out how to use their brains to their advantage," Brown says. Mostly these people aim high for success but why is it important to aim high for success? How they can achieve anything they want? we will answer to these questions.

The expert has revealed tactics that effective individuals use to accomplish their goals, which he refers to as "brainpower methods." Each tool is a mental model that influences your decisions and behavior as you work toward a common objective. They work together to help you identify opportunities, resolve setbacks, and change the status quo.

Brown's five secrets to long-term sustainability are as follows:

Make your own choices.

When you look at extremely successful individuals, you'll see that their journey to success was full of twists and turns. Brown explains, "Successful people take a lot of circuits." "They have an uncanny ability to spot non-traditional openings."

Rather than standing in a long line of succession, take directions that no one else has taken. Take on tasks that can help you learn a new talent, search for ways to impress people you respect, and look for unexpected opportunities. Know that there are several directions to get to the same destination, so don't be scared to be inventive.

Identify what you contribute

Successful individuals constantly assess their abilities and use this information to get support and change. "If they have a shortfall, they are aware of it," Brown says.

Request feedback from teachers and coaches on your talents and shortcomings, and evaluate your skills as accurately as possible. Utilize this data and determine whether you need to experience or do in order to master your abilities and minimize your weaknesses. Brows advises against avoiding critique out of fear or modesty. "When it comes to performance, that's the kiss of death."

Focus on one goal

A successful person's ability to select a task and maneuver around it without getting overwhelmed is a typical trait. "They have a lot of concentration, which helps them think and perform," Brown says.

Make a goal list to help you choose which opportunities to pursue. "Don't be fooled by the appearance of a lost chance because you have what you need to get it," Brown advises. "Stay focused on your target and don't get sidetracked."

Work at the edge of your comfort zone

If you ever want to succeed, you have to take chances, and good people know how much risk they can take. "They have the ability to mitigate the dangers," Brown says. "They're not mad, so they're out of their comfort zone."

Test your own limits by watching for risks that make you feel a little uneasy, but also nervous and nervous. Brown admits, "You have an optimum risk spectrum that you must try to calibrate and appreciate." The more you try out different types of threats, large and minor, the better it will be to pinpoint your precise location in the future.

Put your energy into daily work

Successful people put in long hours to accomplish their objectives. They are propelled by an innate force that encourages them to persevere in the face of adversity or when success is elusive. "They want to give to the process and participate in it," Brown says. It has a persistent push rather than a challenging one.

Rather than focusing on the final result, immerse yourself in the everyday process of doing it. Learning to enjoy the process will assist you in gaining the endurance you need. Brown advises, "You must appreciate the pursuit of success." "The pursuit continues even longer than the accomplishment."

VIETNAM VETERANS MEMORIAL FUND

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund (VVMF) is the nonprofit organization that founded the Vietnam Veterans Memorial (The Vall) in Washington, D.C., in 1982. VVMF is the organization that partners with the National Park Service to maintain and care for The Wall, The Three Servicemen statue, flagpole, and In Memory plaque.

VVMF's mission is to honor and preserve the legacy of service in America and educate all generations about the impact of the Vietnam War and era. We honor the service of all, preserve the memory of those who died during the war and since returning home, and educate all generations about the lasting impact of the war.

As a 501(c3) nonprofit organization with no government funding, VVMF's programs, ceremonies and education efforts are dependent upon your generous donations. Help us achieve our vision of ensuing a society in which all who have served and sacrificed in our nation's Armed Forces are properly honored. Please consider making a donation by going to www.vmf.org or calling 202-393-0090.
